

September 20, 2012

To Whom It May Concern,

It is with great pleasure that I write this letter about VR Quest and its founder Warren L. Black. I had the opportunity to meet Warren in May of 2011, when he came in to demonstrate VR Quest as an option for our summer camp programs. We currently oversee the operation of over 70 camps, clinics, and academies held at Stony Brook University. We are always looking for new, innovative programs that will engage the interest of our campers and provide an enriching experience for all that enroll. VR Quest did not disappoint. Mr. Black returned to Stony Brook on multiple occasions to demonstrate the program for our supervisors, other camp staff members and most importantly for the campers during the 2011 summer. After seeing the program in action, and getting such positive feedback from the campers, we decided to add VR Quest to our 2012 Summer Camp Academy offerings. Warren was extremely helpful throughout the process of selecting hardware, setting up the software, and prepping our instructors to teach the program. He was always available to assist with any issues that arose. This quality support did not end when the program started. He was on campus on multiple occasions to assist our instructors and interact with the campers enrolled in the program.

In addition to the quality service we received, the product completely surpassed all of our expectations. VR Quest is truly a high-quality, unique computer program that provided each camper a high-quality, unique experience that they could not get in any other camp program in the area. The campers in this academy became fully immersed into the world of virtual reality. They were impressed with the quality of the graphics and became hooked from the first day of the academy. VR Quest is by far one of the best programs I have seen in a camp setting. I would fully recommend this program to any camp, afterschool, or enrichment program that is interested in a high quality, educational, computer-based product.

Sincerely,

Nicholas G. Fucci

Nicholas G. Fucci
Assistant Director of Camps & Clinics
Stony Brook University

